NEWS RELEASE

New Website Lets Kindersley Citizens Adjust Budget

The Town of Kindersley has launched a new interactive budget website offering Kindersley citizens the opportunity to weigh in on the 2015 budget and see how individual tax dollars are used.

From now until late December 2015, Kindersley taxpayers are encouraged to visit the site – kindersley.citizenbudget.com – and provide their input on a variety of budget questions.

Residential property owners can input their assessment value and see how their taxes were distributed in 2014, and then vote to increase or decrease spending on different Town departments and services. Participants may also indicate whether they are in favour of a mill rate increase or a special levy in order to generate funds for a selection of future capital projects.

The website also includes survey questions that will help Council and Administration determine the level of satisfaction Kindersley residents have with local programs and services.

The budget website is another unique initiative to engage Kindersley citizens and gain input on the budget planning process. It is a follow-up to the two community consultations that were held on October 22.

For more information about the 2015 Kindersley budget and to view the public presentation, visit www.kindersley.ca/budget.
